

ABSTRACT

A performance management system provides performance information of a communication network. The performance management system receives an instruction to request the performance information from a user system. The performance management system processes the instruction to determine the performance information. The performance management system generates a graphical format of the performance information. The performance management system then transmits the graphical format of the performance information to the user system.

10